De-Centralized College Counseling Knowledge-Base

- In Student Services: A Handbook for the Profession, Komives & colleagues (2003) make the case for the important role of counseling and mental health services on college and university campuses. Our data-base fills a professional development gap for college counseling professionals by doing the work of bringing together and disseminating knowledge found across several professional literatures.
- Phase 1 was a review of college counseling articles over 10 years: 1998-2008. Phase 1 reviewed over 200 articles in 10 different journals
- Phase 2 was a review of college counseling articles over 4 years to bring up database up to date: 2009-2013. Phase 2 reviewed nearly 500 articles in 9 different journals.
- Phase 3 was a review of college counseling articles over 4 years to further update the database: 2014-2017. Phase 3 reviewed nearly 400 articles in 9 different journals.
