American College Counseling Association

What is ACCA?

The American College Counseling Association is an association for people working or studying in higher education who have a professional identity in counseling and whose purpose is fostering student development.

ACCA works to:

- Support and enhance the practice of college counseling.
- Provide leadership and advocacy for the profession of counseling in higher education.
- Promote ethical and responsible professional practice.
- Promote communication and exchange among college counselors across service areas and institutional settings.
- Encourage cooperation with other organizations related to higher education and college student development.

ACCA Mission

The mission of the American College Counseling Association is to be the interdisciplinary and inclusive professional home that supports emerging and state-of-the-art knowledge and resources for counseling professionals in higher education.

Who Joins ACCA?

Any professional who has an interest in the field of counseling and student development in higher education is encouraged to join ACCA. Students engaged in graduate counseling and student development programs are also welcome. ACCA members are employed by universities, community colleges, vocational-technical schools and other institutions of higher education. In addition, ACCA members are engaged in college counseling in a variety of ways including, but not limited to, counseling center positions.

Benefits of Joining ACCA

- ACCA members receive the highly acclaimed publication Journal of College Counseling, the ACCA journal that contains both practitioner-oriented and scholarly articles related to college counseling (published three times per year). All members receive electronic access to the journal, which includes the full digital archive going back to 1998(1).
- ACCA members have access to ACCA-L, the electronic network for college counselors and related professionals. Members also have full access to the members-only section of the ACCA website and enjoy 24/7 connections and conversations with college counseling professionals through ACCA's social media.

- ACCA members enjoy the following professional benefits:
 1. Opportunities to define the profession of counseling in higher education by becoming a member of an ACCA national committee.
 2. An identity as a member of a national organization that promotes the profession of college counseling and provides networking opportunities with other professional college counselors.
 3. Promotion of the development and recognition of professional standards for college counselors.
 4. Continuing Education opportunities specific to college counseling
 5. Grant opportunities to support college mental-health research. Emerging Leader Grants (in the form of ACCA or ACA Conference registration awards) are also available to masters' and doctoral level graduate students.
 6. National recognition through professional awards for meritorious service and other significant contributions to the field of college counseling.
 7. Discounted registration to the ACCA annual conference, which offers members a chance to network and obtain CEU's for psychologists, counselors and social workers.
